

Captain Charles Walter Veach was born on May 18, 1884, in Caddo, Oklahoma. He joined the Oklahoma National Guard and mobilized for the Crazy Snake Rebellion before being mobilized for the Mexican Expedition where the Oklahoma National Guard was deployed to the Texas border. During World War I, the Oklahoma National Guard was absorbed into the U.S. Army's 142nd Division. Capt Veach and other members of the Choctaw tribe were the first to use a Native American language after the German's succeeded in eavesdropping on U.S. Army communications. The Choctaw Code Talkers confounded the enemy and set the stage for further use of Native American Code Talkers in the U.S. Military. After World War I, Captain Veach returned to the Choctaw Nation in Oklahoma. He served on the Tribal Council, and he also represented the Choctaw Nation in the Camp Council of the Five Civilized Tribes. Capt Veach died on October 13, 1966 and rests in the Highland Cemetery in Durant, Oklahoma.

[Modified from the bio written by A.D. Elliott that was posted on EverydayPatriot.com]// see below:

Captain Charles Walter Veach was born on May 18, 1884, in Caddo, Oklahoma.

Joining the Oklahoma National Guard, Captain Charles Veach was first mobilized for the Crazy Snake Rebellion dispute before being mobilized for the Mexican Expedition, where the Oklahoma National Guard was deployed to the Texas border.

The Oklahoma National Guard was absorbed by the U.S. Army's 142nd Division during World War I. He and other members of the Choctaw tribe first used a Native American language to confound enemy troops and set the stage for further Native American Code Talkers in the U.S. Military.

After the war, Captain Charles Veach returned to the Choctaw Nation in Oklahoma, serving on the tribal council and representing the Choctaw Nation in the Camp Council of the Five Civilized Tribes.

Captain Charles Walter Veach died on October 13, 1966, and rests in the Highland Cemetery of Durant, Oklahoma.

See Also:

Captain Charles Walter Vetch

Corporal Peter Maytubby

Corporal Tobias William Frazier

Corporal Solomon Bond Louis

Private First Class Ben Carterby

Private First Class Joseph Oklahombi

Private Joseph Harvey Davenport

a.d. elliott is a wanderer, writer, and photographer currently living in Salem, Virginia.

In addition to the travel writings at www.takethebackroads.com, you can also read her book reviews at www.riteoffancy.com and US military biographies at www.everydaypatriot.com

Her online photography gallery can be found at shop.takethebackroads.com

#TaketheBackRoads